Set Your 2026 KPIs for Safety and Health Management

Today, organizations often face a significant gap in their safety measurement practices. Some align their key performance indicators (KPIs) with organizational goals, but others rely solely on compliance-based metrics. Safety managers should leverage data to create safer, more productive workplaces. Key recommendations include:

- Establishing safety KPIs
- Aligning them with broader organizational goals
- Using historical data analysis
- Incorporating risk assessment
- Implementing integrated software solutions

USI PATH can help accomplish these KPIs by providing a comprehensive platform for data collection, analysis, and real-time insights. This enables organizations to establish, track, and act on meaningful safety KPIs, ensuring continuous improvement in safety programs and creating a safer workplace.

Post Annual OSHA Logs

OSHA requires that employers post the OSHA Log Summary (OSHA Form 300A) in a common workplace area — where notices are usually posted — so that all employees have access to the information.

The OSHA Log Summary must list the total number of work-related injuries and illnesses that affected employees during the 2024 calendar year. The information must be posted from Feb. 1 until April 30. Additionally, establishments in certain industries deemed high-risk and have between 20 and 249 employees are required to electronically submit information from the 2024 OSHA Form 300A by March 2.

See USI’s OSHA Recordkeeping Guide for detailed instructions on how to maintain and retain OSHA logs.

Leverage Key Solutions for March’s Most Urgent Issues

Looking for effective solutions that you can integrate into this month’s awareness campaigns to enhance safety and wellness in the workplace? Here are three key challenges and best-in-class solutions provided by USI PATH:

- National Ladder Safety Month: Reduce injuries with ladder safety training, which includes safe ladder handling, proper setup, storage, and inspection. This training can be leveraged to promote awareness and reduce ladder-related incidents in the workplace.
- Brain Injury Awareness Month: Promote safety with hazard recognition training, which improves workplace safety by enhancing employees' ability to identify and address potential risks. This training can raise awareness about brain injuries and help implement preventive measures.

Navigate Spring Weather Hazards

Spring weather hazards vary between locations, but some of the most common include severe convective storms (e.g., tornadoes, thunderstorms, and hailstorms), heavy rain, flooding, and mudslides. Such events can cause significant injuries, fatalities, and property damage. Take the following steps to prepare in your area:

- Conduct a risk assessment to review your weather exposures. For instance, coastal environments may be more prone to flooding and mudslides, whereas inland communities are typically more susceptible to tornadoes and hailstorms.
- Train employees on weather hazards and related safety precautions.
- Address spring weather hazards in your business continuity and emergency response plans. Store emergency supplies, contact information, and coverage details in a safe area.

USI PATH offers risk assessments and training that educates employees on emergency response procedures, hazard recognition, and mitigation strategies.

Boost Health and Productivity in the Workplace

May is Global Employee Health and Fitness Month, highlighting the importance of workplace wellness. Healthy employees are more engaged, take fewer sick days, have fewer work-related accidents, and contribute more effectively to their teams. Investing in wellness programs can reduce healthcare costs, boost morale, and increase employee retention. Employers can support their employees' health by offering fitness challenges, providing access to wellness resources, and encouraging healthy habits.

USI is here to help companies establish comprehensive wellness programs tailored to their unique needs. Our expertise in employee benefits and wellness strategies ensures that your organization can foster a healthier, happier, and more productive workforce. Contact us today to learn how we can support your wellness goals and help your employees thrive.

June Is National Safety Month

The National Safety Council (NSC) promotes this annual campaign to increase safety awareness, with weekly themes announced closer to the month of June each year. The council provides free resources and materials on leading causes of preventable injury and death.

USI PATH offers comprehensive solutions that can be leveraged along with these resources. With an industry focus and comprehensive scope, it supports the ability to make ROI based decisions to most effectively advance our clients’ safety and health goals.

USI Path™: Revolutionize your approach to risk management.

Mitigate Heat-Related Illnesses

Heat-related illnesses are a major concern, especially for businesses involving outdoor work or high-temperature environments. USI PATH offers comprehensive solutions to protect employees and ensure safety.

One effective solution is the Heat Illness Prevention Plan, which includes detailed procedures and training to reduce employee exposure to heat stressors. It outlines types of heat illnesses, hazardous predispositions, symptoms, and prevention techniques. The plan also prescribes Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) use and provides emergency response procedures.

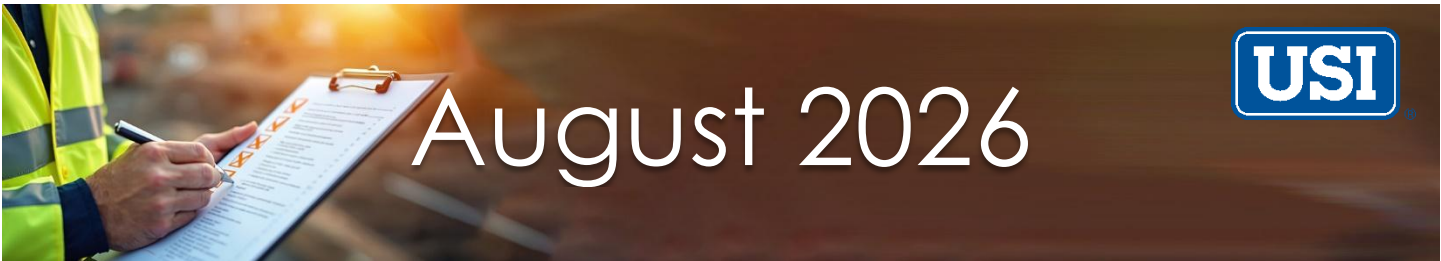

Implementing PATH solutions can significantly reduce the risk of heat-related illnesses by educating employees on the signs of overexposure, setting exposure limits, and ensuring the proper use of PPE. Regular training and adherence to these guidelines can create a safer and more productive work environment.

Participate in Safe and Sound Week

Safe and Sound Week (Aug. 11-17) is an annual campaign conducted by OSHA and other safety organizations to promote safety and health initiatives. Every year, more than 3.6 million employees are seriously injured on the job, and more than 5,000 workers are killed. Dedicating this time to bolstering your safety awareness can help reduce potential job hazards and minimize the likelihood of future occupational injuries and fatalities.

USI PATH offers a variety of solutions designed to help clients reduce potential job hazards:

- Active shooter preparedness training includes strategies for responding to active shooter incidents and recognizing warning signs of potentially violent behavior.
- Fire safety training educates employees on safety hazards associated with fire emergencies and includes fire extinguisher training.
- Hazard recognition training helps employees identify and address potential risks unique to their work environment.

Promote National Concussion Awareness Day

National Concussion Awareness Day, recognized by the Brain Injury Association of America on the third Friday in September, raises awareness of the prevalence of concussions, offers support to those who have experienced these injuries, and highlights best practices for symptom recognition and treatment. Millions of individuals deal with concussions each year. While most of these injuries stem from sports, they can also occur in the workplace because of falls from heights, slips and trips due to cluttered surfaces, struck-by incidents from falling objects, and motor vehicle- or equipment-related accidents.

USI PATH helps clients avoid on-the-job concussions and raise awareness with solutions like Job Hazard Analysis. This helps reduce incidents, accidents, and injuries in the workplace by breaking down tasks, identifying hazards, assessing risks, and implementing control measures. It is used before starting new jobs, after incidents, and during safety training, which can help prevent concussion.

Optimize Workplace Ergonomics

Maintain employee health and productivity with workplace ergonomics. USI PATH offers targeted solutions to help clients optimize work environments and prevent strains and musculoskeletal disorders (MSDs).

One key solution is the comprehensive Targeted Ergonomic Program, which focuses on eliminating or reducing ergonomic stressors through various controls and training on safe lifting techniques. By implementing these ergonomic solutions, you can significantly reduce the risk of MSDs and strains. This not only enhances employee well-being, but also boosts productivity and reduces absenteeism due to injuries.

USI PATH is dedicated to helping clients create safer and more efficient workplaces.

USI Path™: Revolutionize your approach to risk management.

Focus on Drowsy Driving Prevention

Every year, the National Sleep Foundation recognizes the first full week of November as Drowsy Driving Prevention Week. Drowsy driving is a significant risk factor for workplace accidents, particularly for employees who spend long hours on the road. USI PATH offers comprehensive solutions to help clients mitigate risk and ensure the safety of their workforce, including:

- Driver Qualification Program: This ensures that all drivers meet stringent safety and qualification standards, reducing the likelihood of accidents caused by fatigue.
- Disciplinary Program for Safety Violations: This tracks driver activity, establishes criteria and consequences for unsafe behaviors, and provides training.
- Distracted Driving Policy: This outlines clear guidelines for safe driving, including the prohibition of mobile device use while driving.

Implementing these solutions can significantly reduce the risk of drowsy driving accidents.

Minimize Winter Slips and Trips

Winter weather can create hazardous conditions that increase the risk of slips, trips, and falls. USI PATH offers comprehensive solutions to help clients mitigate these risks and ensure a safe environment for their employees and visitors, including:

- Weather Monitoring System(s): This focuses on real-time monitoring and integration into specific business operations.
- Parking Lot Inspection & Maintenance Program: This focuses on regularly scheduled checks to assess the condition of parking lots, including pavement, signage, lighting, and drainage systems.
- Slip-Resistant Shoes: A formal program with preferred vendors can protect employees from as much as 80% of slip and fall accidents.

By implementing these solutions, clients can significantly reduce the risk of winter slips and trips, ensuring a safer environment for everyone.
